The woman with brown hair is wearing a light blue patterned button-down shirt, and the woman with dark hair is wearing a dark top. The background is a soft-focus indoor setting.

ai ACADEMIC
IMPRESSIONS

Get a crash-course in the skills needed to be successful in career services.

OVERVIEW

Guide your own learning at this day-and-a-half bootcamp to focus on the most important aspects of your job. This training will begin by focusing on the current state of career services in higher education and the various organizational models used to accomplish the work. Once you have a foundation of current best practices in career services, you will have the opportunity to attend four out of five concurrent and focused sessions listed below. Leaders in career services charged with training new CS professionals will also have the opportunity to attend a “trainer-of-trainer” session.

After participating in this training you will have the foundational skills required for success in career services along with the knowledge for how to apply them to you work.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This program is designed to improve the essential skills needed by career services professionals. As such, we recommend this training for those who are:

- New to career services (2 years or less)
- Considering a career in career services
- In need of ideas for their own CS training program
- Leading CS departments and want to develop their staff

LEARNING OUTCOME

After participating in this conference, you will learn the fundamental skill-sets required of a career services counselor and how to apply them to your practice.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 2017

8:00 - 8:30 a.m.

Continental Breakfast (included in registration fee)

8:30 - 8:45 a.m.

Welcome and Introductions

In this opening session, you will introduce yourselves and begin to identify critical skills that new career services professionals need.

8:45 - 9:15 a.m.

The New Landscape of Career Services

This opening session will look at how career services has shifted dramatically in the past decade and how this impacts your work with students, faculty, and employers. No longer is this department simply tasked with helping students apply for jobs, but plays an integral role in development throughout the student lifecycle. This session will highlight how those shifts impact your role on an ongoing basis.

9:15 - 10:00 a.m.

Overview of Various Models

Different institutions are answering the need for the evolving role of career services by changing how they work with other entities on campus. In this session, you will hear these various models and the pros and cons of each. You will learn how different institutions determine their workflow, roles within the department, and how they connect with their stakeholders.

Integrating Career Services Throughout the Student Lifecycle

Today's students benefit most from proactive, early engagement and multiple opportunities to learn about different industries as they go through their student life cycle. In this session, you will explore three models that Loyola Marymount University has successfully employed to better serve their students. You will leave with a better idea of how you can apply these models to your own institution.

11:15 - 11:45 a.m.

Working Session: Developing Your PD Plan

In this final working session, you will have an opportunity to revisit your self-assessment and to develop a professional development plan for the next year.

11:45 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

INSTRUCTORS

Branden Grimmatt, Associate Provost, Career and Professional Development, Loyola Marymount University

Branden joined Loyola Marymount University as associate provost in June 2015, where he leads the university's Career and Professional Development initiative. In this role he oversees the office responsible for successfully launching 8,000 undergraduate and graduate students into their professional careers. Over 95% of LMU graduates are employed, enrolled in graduate school, or pursuing post-graduate service or military within six months of graduation.

Before joining LMU, Branden held similar leadership roles in career services at St. Olaf College, Tufts University, and Harvard University. His work in the field of career services has been featured in USA Today, the Wall Street Journal, the Education Advisory Board, and the book Will College Pay Off? by Peter Cappelli of the Wharton School of Business.

Lisa Lovett, Associate Director for Employer Relations, University of Colorado at Boulder

Lisa has worked at the University of Colorado for almost eight years with a focus on employer relations and internship program development. Prior to working for the university, Lisa was a recruiter and internship program manager for multiple for-profit organizations. Her experience on the corporate side brings a unique perspective to university recruiting because she knows how to link employers' wants to student and alumni needs.

Jon Schlesinger, Director of the Hiatt Career Center, Brandeis University

Jon is a frequent writer, presenter, and trainer on career development theory, data analytics, and learning outcome assessment in career services. He presents at national and state career associations, as well as invited trainings at college career centers. Additionally, Jon has recent articles in the NACE journal, as well as peer-reviewed publications. His passion is student career development and working with career center staff. Prior to joining Brandeis, Jon was the Assistant Director for Strategic Planning and Communication in Career Services at the University of Colorado, Boulder.

OTHERS	VS	ACADEMIC IMPRESSIONS
Typically large annual event		Intimate, workshop-style event with personalized attention
Many concurrent sessions; forcing choice		One focused learning track
Uneven sessions and less outcome-focused, driven by an open call for proposals		Needs-driven and meticulously planned with practical outcomes <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Action plans and next steps to use upon returning to campus Carefully-vetted expert instructors that are also practitioners in the field
Lecture-based		Learner-centric and designed for interaction and collaboration
Large networking events with vendors		Small-scale opportunity to truly connect with colleagues in the same position at other institutions
Some slide presentations posted online after the event		200+ page workbooks with references, worksheets, articles, templates, exercises, and planning documents

AI Conference Experiences

Academic Impressions provides valuable exploration of timely and pragmatic challenges to higher education institutions. The combination of impassioned subject matter experts as presenters and means of engaging conference attendees was potent.

- C. Tennent, Associate VP of Facilities Management, University of Saskatchewan

This conference was the complete package: relevant topics, philosophical and practical applications, fantastic speakers, fantastic location. One of the BEST conferences I've ever attended. It is what a conference should be! Full of collaboration, networking and solutions.
