

Empower and Support Women Leaders in Higher Education

Women need proactive professional development support because data shows that women:

- Are more reticent than men to ask for and receive professional development support from their supervisors
- Report that professional development is highly important
- Report lower job satisfaction, likely due to inadequate support
- Are more likely to leave an institution due to unsupportive cultures and colleagues
- Describe consistent barriers to career growth and advancement including tenure and being passed up for leadership roles
